Seven plays out of nowhere, except perhaps the fevered imaginations of seven writers who, last night, sat looking at their screens and started to type. Playwriting at its most primal then, with little time for filters or rewrites, or endless staring at pieces of paper whilst refilling the coffee pot. Brains somehow learn lines, lighting and sound somehow work miracles, wardrobe manage to pull just the right costumes from our huge collection and an SM team of time-management heroes shepherd casts where they need to be. These are the results. Enjoy...
