STAGE DEBUT

Sandwich playwright Don Roberts makes his debut at The Questors Theatre in London when his play Candlelight and Babylon is presented at the 1972 New Plays Festival this weekend and again the following weekend.

"Candlelight and Babylon" has been variously described as "a bitter-sweet, but humorous comment on one man's life" and "a fairy tale for adults". Apparently the play operates on many different levels and so is open to any number of interpretations.

Don, who lives in Sandwich with his wife and two daughters, is a prolific writer of both plays and opera librettos as well as being an accomplished producer.
